The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Edward Winchester Fay, of Southboro, Mass., and Washington. She wore the silver lame wedding gown of her sister, Mrs. Paul Dennis, of Manhattan Beach, Calif.

Ensign Jane Wilson of Pasadena, childhood friend of the bride, was her maid of honor wearing green faille, and the best man was Capt. William Crawford, A. U. S., on duty with the Inter-American Defense Board.

Maj. and Mrs. Correa will be in Washington after Christmas, as Maj. Correa, who formerly resided in Wilmington, Del., and Barranquilla, is on duty here. He was educated in Europe and was graduated from the Sorbonne. His mother came to this country for the wedding. His bride is a graduate of Scripps College in Claremont, Calif., where Dr. Darr formerly was professor of religious history. Dr. Darr was accompanied to Summit by Mrs. Darr.
